crop should be out off. Ice is all much an article of necessity in the summer months as fuel in the winter, and it would be difficult to estimate the school losses to trade, to say nothing of the discomforts, which would result from a difficient crop. An enormous crop is required for the preservation of fresh provisions, and, nearly all our summer drinks would be almost worthless without this cooling and invigorating element. The possibility of being compelled to do without this luxury is not so remote as may be supposed. We are now approachmote as may be supposed. We are now approaching the third week of January, and no ice has yet been made in this part of the country. Two or three weeks more will bring us into Febr three weeks more will bring as into rebrusty, after which time the weather is rarely ever cold enough a sufficient length of time to form ice of a proper thickness or quality for use. We hope for the best, but the prospect now for a bountiful supply of ice next summer is very uncertain.

majority of the nation would never sanction his c-nduct.

Mr. Thompson, of New York, thought the Administration was bound to have Walker prosecuted for a violation of the neutrality laws.

Mr. Warner, of Arkanses, asserted that Paulding exocceded his instructions. He also said if President Pierce had promptly removed Brigham Young, the trouble in Utah would have been avoided. He also advocated a grant of land to Arkansas for railroad purposes.

The committee then rose and the House advocated.

far as we are informed, there is no division of sentiment in that party in regard to the matter in question. To a man, they sustain Gov. Bissexx, and upon grounds that, beyond all question, will satisfy any non-partisan Court. So much confidence have they in the correctness of their opinions and the goodness of the defence that can be made against their assistants, that they would be willing, at any time, to submit the case to impartial adjudication. and the laws of Congress made under authority.

Slavery, in the States where it exists, has its foundation in the municipal regulations of such States, which have no extra-territorial operation, and no binding force in another territory. The law of Missouri, under which the negrows service to the plaintiff, is repugnant to our law and the policy of our institutions, neither by the law of nations, or the comity of States, can affect the condition of the alave in this State, or, within our jurisdiction, give the owner any property in. or control over him. The constitution of the State is here the paramount law, except, in so far as the constitution of the United States, or the powers therein delegated to Congress, may limit or control its operation. The owner, therefore, by force of the laws of another State, under the law of Illinois has no property in the fugitive, and can here, under property in the fugitive, and can here, un of such fugitives, and for opposing or interupting reclamation under the remedies given the lower. By the terms of that act, concurrent jurisdiction seems to have been conferred upon Federal and State tribunals.

By the act of Congress of 1850 on the same subject, the right of the owner to reclaim his fugitive slave is declared; remedies for recaption and return of the fugitive to the State or Territory whence he may have fled, are provided for; punishments for obstructing recaption and return, and for harboring or conceating the fugitive to prevent recapture are provided; and damages for the injury, by way of penalty, are given to the owner, to be recovered by action in the District or Territorial courts of the United States, where the offence is committed. The act of 1850, by necessary implication, repeals the act of 1793, so far as the provisions of the former conflict with the latter, whether the conflict consists in remedies given or penalties imposed. The act of 1850 not only provides different remedies, penalties and modes of procedure, but names the forums in which they may be enforced; and therefore, adde from the question of the power of Congress to confer jurisdiction upon State tribunals; it would seem they intended to confine—in execution of the Federal Laws upon this tribunals, it would seem they intended to continuin execution of the Federal laws upon this

A reculiar speech.

Eli Thayer, President of the Emigrant Aid Association, seems to have a great deal of the shrewdness for which the people of New England have long been remarkable. His speech in the House on Ceutral American affairs, on Thursday, exhibits not a little tact and ability. The National Intelligencer says that "there were many telling points in this genial speech, which Mr. Adrian, (Dem.) of New Jersey, complimented, and with most of which he speech, which Mr. Adrian, (Dem.) of New Jersey, complimented, and with most of which he expressed his concentrance." There was good reason for this, as Mr. Thayer's remarks were not in the common vein of party harangues.—He opened a whole new vist no the astonished gaze of the fire eaters, of which they had never dreamed before. The man who stood there as the champion of organized emigration had exhibited the predigious power of that engine in the colonization of Kansas and therefore what he urged about the see. As he did not return the next night; nor the next, fears for his eafety were aroused; and about haif a dezen men of the neighborhood, well acquainted with the country, started in his tracks in search of him. The search was kept up until the snow fell, on Thanksgiving day, covering his tracts, and rendering the pursuit mavailing.

From Walters' own account, he wandared, after getting lost, over a great extent of country, perfectly bewildered. He found no game, and no signs of life. His strength gradually failed, and a terrible death stared him in the face. His faithful dog still kept with him, but he threw away his heavy rifle, too fatigued to carry it. For four nights and five days he wandered thus, "with nothing to cat, no fire, no place to sleep, and saw no sign of a human being." he says, all that fearful period. His hallon is sursered, and ha moment more he is surrounded by friends.

This was the hour of his deliverance, and by a miracle. A party of three gentlemen from St. Anthony, were looking for pine claims, and by a mere chance strayed in that direction. But a difficulty still lay in the way. Walters was not able to walk; and it was many miles to the settlement from which he had started. One immediately started off for help, and the others remained with Walters. A fire was built, a camp made, and some nutriment given him. He had now been lost four nights and five days, and before the person returned with the wagon it was five days more. A road had to be cut through the greater part of the way, and the swamps were scarcely frozen. ORNER OF PEARBORN AND WASHINGTON W. R. WOOD & CO., 0s Wednesday, Dec. 23d, 1857. After being taken to Hopper's house, he remained ten days in an exhausted state ere it was supposed his injuries were so severe. His lower limbs then began to mortify, and it was apparent even to the uninformed settlers there that the only way to save his life was to bring him to St. Anthony or St. Paul, and have them amputated. This tedious journey over rough roads lasted two days, during which time he had to be held like an infant, and had no rest.

The operation took place on Wednesday last at the County, Infirmary, at St. Anthony, by several surgeons. So berculean, we are told, is the constitution of Wallers that after twenty days of almost unparal seled suffering, the surgeons were compelled to give him an otherwise fatal dose of chloroform to keep him from struggling during the operation. If as is now looked for, the eastern emigration should set in towards the North-west in the spring, the wilderness now known as Dakotah will re-ceive its full share. To this we can have no reasonable objection—we should rather encour-age 'it; for the sooner Dakotah is settled with a population of hardy and industrious-emigrants, the sooner will Minnesota be enabled to build and complete her system of railroads; and the more advantageous will be her situation.

In the contemplation of this question, we conceive it to be the better plan to look to the ultimate good growing out of an erganization original drawings,
